About the programme

Staff Commitment: Building a Highly Engaged Team (WSHP17081501)

Workshop outline

Staff turnover rate of new generations is higher than that of other employees in many organizations. It is therefore important to increase the employee engagement of the new generations so that we can have a committed team of future leaders with higher performance and higher retention. A worldwide research shows that the strategies of driving commitment include reinforcing individual development planning and connecting the new generations with the organization. This workshop introduces these two strategies and presents the tactics of implementation. It covers:

- Staff development by implementing individual competency-based development plans
- Connection between staff and the organization to enhance staff commitment
 - Commit to staff development
 - Manage staff perception
 - Connect with company strategies and success
 - Reinforce the corporate culture

By applying the skills and knowledge learned to the workplace, participants will be able to:

- Develop and implement an effective staff development process for the new generations
- Manage their perception of the organization in the changing environment
- Increase their sense of achievement
- Build a positive organization culture that is preferred by the new generations

Trainer

Ms. Angela Shing, BBus, MSc, IIAC(UK)

Ms. Shing is a seasoned training professional with a strong background in finance and commerce. Prior to running her own training consultancy, she was the regional head of a major bank overseeing the training and development function for 13,000 employees in Asia Pacific. She now specializes in designing and developing training workshops in sales and service, client relationships, leadership and management, communication, and personal and team effectiveness.

About the programme

Creating a Culture that Engages and Retains Millennials (WSHP17082301)

Workshop outline

Their work habits are different. Their values are different. They care more about work life balance and less about money. They want you to give responsibility rather than earn it. And they are entering the workforce at record rates – they are the millennial generation.

Dale Carnegie Training in partnership with MSW/ASR research conducted a study among millennials to find out what drives engagement with this emerging workforce. This workshop will uncover the employee engagement drivers that are unique to millennials and learn how you can better develop an environment that helps to engage and retain them.

Engaged millennials are more productive, less likely to leave, and highly likely to recommend your organization to friends and followers on social media. Do not miss this opportunity to begin to engage millennials at your organization.

After joining this workshop, participants will understand:

- Why employee engagement matters
- The values important to millennials
- What drives engagement in millennials
- Actions that can be taken to engage workforce
- The costs and benefits of employee engagement
