

HKICPA Seminars - Investor Relations Series

(July to September 2017)

Investor Relations (IR) forms part of the Financial Public Relations function of a company to communicate between the corporate management and the investment community. It also serves as a bridge for providing market intelligence to internal corporate management. With the growing interests in the IR profession, HKICPA is pleased to launch a new IR series in the second half of 2017. Experienced IR practitioners will be invited to share their views and insights about the profession, as well as practical experience in performing their duties in order to let members enrich knowledge of IR.

For the recent decades, financial public relations has become essential for listed companies and listed candidates, particularly in handling complex transactions, building relationships with international investors and financial analysts, as well as raising corporate profiles through both local and regional media coverage.

This seminar provides the key concept and value in financial communications (for investors and media) with a range of theories and case studies. Participants will learn more about financial public relations and daily operation of an industry player from the experienced speaker.

After joining this seminar, participants will gain knowledge about:

- The role and value of financial public relations
- The daily professional practice of investor relations and media relations
- The importance of financial communications in IPO projects

Social Media and Crisis Management in Investor Relations (SCPD17091201)

Course outline

Social media is popular nowadays while information can be communicated and shared instantly via networks. Crisis may easily emerge when there is a widespread of negative news, especially through social media, and the resulting stock price volatility may bring adverse effect to listed companies. Crisis management often requires decisions to be made within a short time frame, and often after an event has already taken place, hence to reduce uncertainty.

This seminar provides up-to-date assessments and knowledge on issues that affect any organization, especially listed companies, as well as the management skills and strategies from the investor relations perspective. With a range of theories and case studies, participants will learn more about crisis management, particularly for crisis emerged among social media.

After joining this seminar, participants will:

- Identify different types of social media and potential crisis
- Understand the flow of crisis management
- Develop skills and strategies in handling crisis on social media
