ABOUT THE WEBINAR

Paying with a mobile phone in Mainland China has become a daily activity. In 2019, 92% of people in China's largest cities used WeChat Pay or Alipay as their main means of payment, and the phenomenon was also seen in rural China where 47% of the rural population reported using mobile payments very regularly. China has developed its own approach to payment methods – while all countries have switched from cash to credit cards and are now switching to mobile phones, China has skipped a step. The use of credit cards in China is sporadic, if not non-existent.

At the webinar, the speaker will talk about:

- What is mobile payment?
- Why and how does mobile payment in China work?
- What's next – how can foreign businesses use new mobile payment methods to boost their revenues in China?
