Restructuring of Companies in Financial Distress: Global and Asian Perspectives

About the topic

In the last two decades, many jurisdictions around the world have reformed or are considering reforming their insolvency and restructuring laws in order to promote, among others, legal regimes that are conducive to restructuring viable companies and to facilitate the coordination of a cross-border restructuring framework. However, there remains a wide divergence on what should be the optimal restructuring framework.

This topic was recently discussed at a two-day conference, entitled the “Restructuring of Companies in Financial Distress: Global and Asian Perspectives”, organised by the School of Law of the City University of Hong Kong. For this webinar, we are pleased to welcome Dr Charles Qu, one of the expert speakers at that conference, to share the current trends and future challenges on restructuring models and reforms around the world, from global and Asian perspectives.
