

Era of the New PRC Company Law - implications for Hong Kong insolvency practitioners

Event code: SCPD25022802

About the topic

On 29 December 2023, the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress of the People's Republic of China ("PRC") adopted amendments to the PRC Company Law (2023 Revision) ("New Company Law").

The RIF is pleased to invite two expert speakers to provide an overview of the New Company Law and share their insights on the following matters:-

- Introduction of the key amendments, effective date and transition period of the New Company Law
- Impact on insolvency proceedings due to the enhanced corporate governance requirements, changes in shareholder rights and protections rules, and debt restructuring and liquidation procedures and priorities
- Practical implications for insolvency practitioners ("IPs"), such as the new compliance requirements and reporting obligations, increased level of responsibilities for directors, supervisors and officers, and the need for strategic consideration of social responsibilities in proceedings, including protection of consumers, the ecological environment and the public interest
- Challenges and recommendations to IPs
