How can businesses take proactive measures with respect to Trump administration's global tariff policies and what are the transfer pricing considerations?

About the topic

In today's rapidly evolving international landscape, businesses face unprecedented challenges and opportunities stemming from the Trump administration's global tariff policies. These changes not only impact trade dynamics but also necessitate a strategic re-evaluation of pricing structures and compliance frameworks. As companies navigate the complexities of international trade, transfer pricing considerations become paramount. Businesses must ensure that their pricing strategies align with regulatory requirements while optimizing tax efficiency.

In this webinar, the speaker will analyse and interpret how tariffs impact a company's intercompany transactions and importantly, the opportunities for proactive planning and the potential/ common supply chain adjustments. They will cover the following topics:

- How tariffs impact a company's intercompany transactions
- Which entity(ies) should bear the additional customs costs
- Should/can intercompany prices and agreements be adjusted
- How to think about comparable data
- Opportunities for proactive planning
- Supply chain adjustments

The goal of the seminar is to help businesses navigate the ever-changing global business environment, seize the initiative, turn challenges into opportunities, and transform crises into breakthroughs. Participants are encouraged to express their views or raise questions. We look forward to your participation and welcome your valuable input to enrich the session.
