

Accounting and Financial Reporting

E-learning: Impairment of non-financial assets

COURSE HIGHLIGHTS:

HKAS 36 requires an entity to ensure the carrying values of in-scope assets are not stated above their recoverable amounts. Management exercise judgement and make assumptions in determining whether an asset is impaired. The underlying assumptions and key inputs could have material effect on the estimated recoverable amounts, and are key sources of estimation uncertainty. Many practitioners often identify impairment as a key audit matter for audits of listed entities.

This e-learning will provide an overview of HKAS 36 and cover the following aspects:

- Common pitfalls and accounting considerations (including issues on identification of impairment indicators, application of discount rate, recoverable amount calculation, and corporate assets, etc);
- Impact of climate change considerations on impairment assessment; and
- Key differences in reversals of impairment loss between an individual asset, a cash-generating unit and goodwill.
