

YMC and MBIG joint seminar: The outlook of China's economy under Trumponomics

The withdrawal from Trans-Pacific Partnership trade deal from U.S. as stated by President-elect Donald Trump, EU referendum and Brexit, all these are going to have an impact on China's economy.

At the seminar, two prominent economists will share their insights on:

- ✧ Repositioning for the new world order; and
- ✧ China's economic growth and restructuring.

The presentation will be followed by an interactive panel discussion.

TOPICS HIGHLIGHTS

✧ Repositioning for the new world order

- Is long-term US Treasury yield going to double from its current level of 2.6%, creating a disaster for the global bond market?
- Is the currency war deepening on Trump's policy backdrop, with JPY and the Euro leading the way to more competitive devaluation?
- What are the effects on the emerging markets, including Asia?
- How will China react to Trump's anti-China policies? Is there going to be a trade war? Is the Renminbi going to fall sharply? Is China going to dump US Treasuries, thus creating global financial chaos?

✧ China's economic growth and restructuring

- What are and how to view China's current economic problems?
- What are the new engines and tools that China can use to spur economic growth?
- What are the key driving forces for China's economic restructuring and transformation?
- Are the objectives outlined in the 13th Five-Year Plan achievable?
- What does the Sino-America trade and economic relationship look like under the Trump's administration?
