

ForensIG Debate and Spring Cocktail Event 2017

About the topic

The Forensics Interest Group (ForensIG) will be hosting its second spring debate and cocktail event in February. This year's debate will cover another hot topic: "In a world of Wikileaks and Edward Snowden, this house believes that the leakers of the Panama Papers should be locked up forever ...or given a medal". The issue surrounding the "Panama Papers" ignited fierce debate around the world about the rights and wrongs of individuals using offshore entities to hold their assets out of plain sight. A panel, including two distinguished well-known offshore lawyers, a journalist and another persuasive personality will take up the different sides of the argument. The debate will be chaired by John Donker of PwC, the convenor of ForensIG management committee. Following the debate, there will be plenty of time for drinks and networking to celebrate the Year of Rooster.

This will be an excellent opportunity to enjoy a lively and light-hearted debate, and network with fellow members and guests from the forensics and other fields in a more informal and relaxed atmosphere.
