ABOUT THE SEMINAR

A cryptocurrency, such as Bitcoin, is a digital asset designed to work as a medium of exchange using cryptography to secure transactions and to control the creation of additional units of the currency. With the creation of Bitcoin in 2009, cryptocurrency made the leap from being an academic concept to virtual reality. Despite its recent issues, Bitcoin's success and growing visibility since its launch has resulted in the creation of numerous cryptocurrencies.

Nevertheless, cryptocurrencies have limitations, for instance, one's virtual vault may be hacked, or their relative complexity will likely deter most people, except for those sophisticated in technology. At the coming seminar, Dr. Julian Hosp will talk about the future of cryptocurrencies, including the likely regulation and government scrutiny, acceptance among consumers and other considerations for investment in cryptocurrencies.
