ABOUT THE SEMINAR

The world's two biggest economies – China and the US – are in the midst of an intensifying trade war and it seems that neither side is prepared to back down. Each side has implemented additional tariffs on billion dollars' worth of goods traded with the other, leaving companies across the countries scrambling to respond to increase tariffs on the goods in their supply chain. So how does this really affect companies' import and export activities and are there any levers available to proactively manage the impact?

At this seminar, Mr. Derek Lee, Partner of PwC Customs & International Trade will share his insights on what companies can do to mitigate the adverse impact of the current tariff environment while highlight potential opportunities.
