Latest employment trends 2022 and employee tax incentives

About the topic

For most of the past year, the economy and employment market have been on the road to recovery. Business activity gradually picked up from the second half of 2021, amid loosening social distancing measures. Along with the recovering economy, and despite the bump in the road from the fifth wave of the pandemic, the outlook in the 2022 employment market has been optimistic – with the overall increase in headcount expectations.

In this seminar, the speakers will discuss:

- The results and observations on the latest employment trends from the KPMG's Executive Salary Outlook Survey 2022
- Greater Bay Area opportunities and key individual income tax developments
- Key factors to attract and retain employees, including compensation trends / tax implications in the battle for talent
